— PREFACE —

The Sect known as the "Mennonites," being persecuted by the different state parties of Europe, found a refuge in America. The main point of distinction from other Protestant bodies was the objection to military service and abhorrence of warfare and military life, the taking of Judicial oaths, and baptism of children. The first of their doctrine, after being requested by the renowned William Penn, to settle in his colony, came in 1683, and settled in Germantown, where they proved to be a religious, law-abiding and prosperous people. Here the name "Pennsylvania Dutch" was first given them, a term applied as distinction rather than one of disrespect. We find that in 1798, the pioneers crossed the border and formed settlements near the Niagara, while others passed on to York County, along Yonge Street, north of Toronto. The first to come to Waterloo Township were Joseph Sherk and Samuel Betzner, who came here in 1800 from Franklin Co'y, Penna. Following close during the next few years, came the Bechtels, Beans, Kinseys, Clemens, and others. About the year 1807, the Eby's, Erbs, Snyders, and many others followed in quick succession.

— INTRODUCTION —

In this brief record it is not in the mind of the undersigned to give a comprehensive history of any of the numerous and respected families or their descendants, who migrated to Waterloo County in the early pioneer days, but with a view to more definitely sketch, in outline, briefly a few of the descendants of the original "Bean" family. In some instances my information is very meagre, which the writer regrets very much. I shall leave the merits of this sketch to the good judgment and enduring patience of all those concerned, and beg for a sympathetic and tolerant spirit to overlook these shortcomings in the production of a more favorable chronology.

For much of the information as detailed here, the undersigned is indebted to the late "Ezra E. Eby," author of "History of Waterloo Township," published about the year 1895. Also the late "Abraham T. Bean," and others. All have his sincere thanks for their able assistance and contribution in the collection of these manuscripts and sketches.

STRATFORD, ONT.

In this brief chronology, no attempt is being made to give a detailed account of any of the early settlers, who, because of dire persecution of their religious beliefs in the countries of Europe, were compelled to look for a home where they could enjoy their religious beliefs and privileges, and where they would have freedom to worship God under their own fig tree, for which they had longed so many years.

About the year 1700, the first of these "Non-Conformists," or, as they had now adopted the name of their leader, "Simon Menno," and were hereafter known as "Mennonites," landed from Holland, and settled in Germantown, near Philadelphia. Numbers migrated in the following years, and settled in Lancaster, Berks, Montgomery, and other counties. By their great thrift and perseverance they made for themselves most excellent homes. In course of time, when the population of Penna. became too dense for an agricultural community, it was found necessary to seek homes in newer and more thinly populated places. In all the new places the most marked success as usual attended them. They have always had the extraordinary fortune to select the very best part of the country, and with the natural advantages they combined their great industry which has ever resulted in making the locality of the State or Province in which they settled the best to be found. In the year 1798, when those parts of Pa. which were settled by continental Europeans, had become so populous that it was impossible for all to obtain land at home, some families from Bucks and other counties, decided to emigrate to the wilds of Canada, where, it was reported, there were excellent tracts of land for farming purposes. Being averse to military service, peace restored after the Revolutionary war, the Independence of the thirteen colonies declared, many now resolved to leave their homes and property in the New Republic and travel to British territory north of the lakes. Numbers decided to cross over to Canada because of the great faith they had in the British Government in fulfilling their promise, made to them over one hundred years previously, in granting them exemption from military service and from taking oaths. The first settlements which these people made in this Province, were in the Niagara District, at what is commonly known as "The Twenty." Afterwards some settled in the County of York, and other counties. In the fall of 1799, Joseph Schöerg, (now spelled Shirk or Sherk,) and Samuel Betzner came to Canada. They spent the winter at or near the Falls, and further inland until spring. Being dissatisfied with these sections as permanent locations, they pressed onward about thirty miles beyond the then limit of civilization, their desire being to locate on the banks of a river of which they had heard as traversing this district. No white settlers had as yet penetrated thus far, but a few fur traders had located temporarily on the banks of the Grand River, within the County of Waterloo.

In 1799 and 1800, two Englishmen, named Ward and Smith, were engaged in slashing the way for a road which the Government contemplated building from Dundas towards this county. Having satisfied themselves from a thorough examination that everything was up to and beyond their expectations, and entirely satisfactory, they decided to settle on the banks of the Grand River. They moved here with their families in the spring of 1800. They had to pass through a wilderness of thirty miles from Dundas to their location. In the same year Sherk and Betzner purchased their land directly from Richard Beasley and paid for it. Sherk exchanged his horse for the land so purchased, but still had sufficient means left to purchase a yoke of oxen and a sled, by which means he transported his family to Waterloo, in the early spring of 1800, and located on the east banks of the Grand River, directly opposite where Doon now is. Other arrivals came later in the same year, bringing their families and household effects.

At this time, we are told, there was no white settlement where Buffalo is now situated. The site of Hamilton was an impassable swamp. The only "symptom" of a village, where is now Dundas, consisted of a small mill, and a smaller store, owned by a Mr. Hatt. During these early years quite a number of families arrived here, the hardships of those early pioneers was very great. It is stated that even the peelings of the potatoes had to be saved for planting in the spring of 1802.

In the year 1800, John Biehn, Sr., with a number of other families came to Waterloo Co'y, from Montgomery Co'y, Pa., in one company. There were nine teams in this train, two of them having four horses each. All the wagons were covered. They were often obliged to stay in the woods over night while on the journey, but they were well prepared to protect themselves against all kinds of weather, as they had in addition to their covered wagons, movable tents which rendered the most useful and valuable service. They also brought a number of cows with them, which supplied them with milk while on the way.

The most extraordinary difficulties, however, beset them while crossing the Alleghany Mountains with their heavily laden teams. They found it necessary to unload a considerable portion of their baggage and goods, and pay for their conveyance, their own teams being utterly unable to bring all across. They crossed the Niagara River on what was then known as "Flats." There was no accident or sickness on this trip. The time required to make the trip from Montgomery County to Waterloo County was ten weeks, including the two weeks which they laid over at "Hornings on the Mountain," while the men in the company worked on the road through the Beverly Swamp, making it so that horse-teams could be in some way taken over it. There was no settlement between Hornings and Waterloo.

After this road was improved, the company left Hornings for Waterloo with their teams. George Clemens drove the first horse-team that ever came through the Beverly Swamp. When they arrived at the end of their long journey, they found the country as they had expected, all woods except a few clearings made by those who had come a short time previously. They soon selected places where they commenced to make themselves homes. John Biehn II settled on the place where the village of Doon now stands; his father John Sr. about a mile west. In the fall of 1801, we find that this beautiful County had a population of twelve families, all from Pa. In order to get to the nearest mill or store, they had to go through the almost impassable Beverly Swamp, to where Dundas now is located, a distance of about 25 miles. The settlers had to construct their own roads, receiving no assistance from the government. All public business had to be done in "Little York," (Toronto), about 50 miles further on, to which the county belonged. Schools were not yet established. A little school was started in 1802, near where the village of Blair now is situated, a man by the name of Rittenhouse being the first teacher in the County of Waterloo. Roads were now made. Great trouble was experienced in getting to the mill, the nearest being at Dundas, 25 miles away.

A small gristmill was erected where Galt is now situated, which was very much appreciated by the early settlers. The building was a small one, not over 24 x 28 feet in dimensions and 1½ storeys high. Some trouble was experienced in getting a clear title to the land, consisting of about 94,012 acres, because of a joint mortgage of $20,000.00 recorded against it, being then known as the "Beasley Tract," in this "way-out-of-the-world-country," as Canada was then known by some. The settlers met in Jan'y, 1804, and decided to send Samuel Bricker and Joseph Sherk to Franklin Co'y, Pa., in an effort to raise the required amount to lift the mortgage. They almost failed in their task, Joseph Sherk being so discouraged, he immediately returned home in despair, leaving Samuel Bricker, who proceeded to Lancaster County. Having made known his errand among his friends and co-religionists, he finally succeeded in raising the required amount. At the conclusion of S. Bricker's urgent and inspiring appeal among his "Mennonite" friends, they arose, in the meeting, as one man, and declared, "truly, we are in duty bound to assist those Canadian brethren in distress." A joint stock company was formed and in due time, the required amount of $20,000.00 was ready; this amount all in silver dollars, was put in a strong box, and entrusted to S. Bricker, and Daniel Erb, who was appointed his assistant, and conveyed by them, on what was then known as a buggy (a leicht pläsier weggli) over 500 miles through forests and swamps to Canada, where it was paid to the proper parties. In May of the same year S. Bricker with his assistant Daniel Erb left for their new home in Canada, carrying this large sum of money. Finally, all things were amicably arranged, and the deed between Richard Beasley and his wife, conveying 60,000 acres of land for £10,000 Canadian currency to Daniel Erb and Jacob Erb, who were appointed as agents for the company, was satisfactorily executed. A draft of the Township of Waterloo was made by one named Jones, a surveyor, and the tract of land laid out in lots of 448 acres each. These were divided among the stockholders by casting lots, and, in so doing no dissatisfaction could take place, each family on arriving here had the lot previously selected on which they intended to make their home. When now the land was properly secured, emigration to this new settlement was renewed, and many from Lancaster and other counties made preparations, and soon moved to Waterloo Co'y. Many families arrived during the years 1804 and 1805, taking about five weeks to get to Waterloo Co'y, a distance of about 500 miles. The Niagara River was crossed by a "Scow," from 12 to 14 feet in width and about 30 feet long, propelled by means of oars. They were two days coming from Dundas to Preston. During these early years many others came over, having overcome almost insurmountable obstacles on their journey, built a few log shanties on their clearings, and made for themselves a home. The cleared land was sown to wheat and rye the previous fall, and they could now get it ground at Galt. Any they could spare had to be taken to Dundas, the nearest grain market. The price of wheat ranged from 90c to $1.05 per bushel, later on when more was raised, the price dropped to 50c and 60c per bushel. Land had become more valuable now also, prices ranging from $2.50 to $4.50 per acre. Abraham Erb pushed his way through to where is now the town of Waterloo. His brother John considered him very foolish for settling in that big cedar swamp which would never amount to anything. We find Dundas, during the years 1809 and 1810, was the nearest Post Office, but all legal business had to be done at Little York (Toronto). In June, 1812; President Madison declared war against England. This placed these people in a very trying position and as they could not be induced to take up arms, they were pressed into service as teamsters, and obliged to furnish their own horses. When no horses were to be had, ox-teams were employed. Early in 1813, the victorious American Army followed the retreating General Proctor to Burlington Heights. A number of Waterloo boys who had acted as teamsters, had taken shelter in a swamp nearby during the battle. An officer of the British Army, seeing that all was lost, gave them warning, saying: "Boys, all is lost, clear out and make the best you can," upon which some ran, while others unhitched their horses and rode off for their lives, leaving everything behind. Peace being restored late in the year 1814, the government of Canada fully compensated those teamsters for their losses during the war, and for their valued service, being paid $5.00 per day for the time served with a two-horse team, and $8.00 per day a four-horse team, besides being paid for loss of horses and wagons during time of service. Brighter prospects were now again dawning.

At this time, we are told everything in the shape of grain, flour and feed was very dear. Oats selling at $2.00 per bushel. Dundas could boast of 20 houses. Hamilton was also coming into existence. The Beverly Swamp was still very bad.

The summer of 1816 was what is called, or known as the "cold summer." There was frost every month, and in June and July there were seven heavy frosts. On the morning of the first of June it was frozen so hard, that men and wagons could cross the mud-puddles on the newly formed ice without breaking through. On the 21st of June quite a lot of snow fell. Provisions of all kinds were exceedingly scarce. Wheat was from two to three dollars per bushel. The only hay the farmers could secure was what grew wild in the marshes or beaver meadows. Food for both man and beast was at starvation prices. The hardships these early settlers had to endure during this cold and inclement year, are almost indescribable. Taxes were very low. A Mr. Brubacher had 2,000 acres and paid only $14.00 taxes thereon. Land was cheap. In some of the older settlements of the Township it was selling at $4.00 to $5.00 per acre, yet in such out-of-the-way places as three miles north of Waterloo, it could have been had for a dollar an acre.

The taxes all had to be sent to "Little York" (Toronto) which was then the County town, and these people were never acquainted with what was done with the money. At this time Berlin (now Kitchener) was a dense impassable swamp, wolves, bears, foxes and other wild animals abounded, to which sheep proved an easy prey. The settlers had no want of venison or fish. For a small loaf of bread and a six-penny crock of thick milk, the Indians would bring them the nicest quarter of venison, or a large basket well filled with the finest of speckled trout. The summer of 1817, was nearly as cold and unfruitful as the previous year. Harvest did not take place until after seeding time in the fall. It was so chilly in harvest time that the men wore their coats while reaping the grain. In the year 1820, a bridge was built across the Grand River at Freeport, and known as "The Toll Bridge." The previous year there was one built over the Grand River at Galt.

At this time Berlin had a blacksmith shop where now is the corner of King and Queen Streets. The very trying times in old Pa. during these years, was the cause of many arrivals here. Many failed to procure homes for themselves and children, so Canada was the objective, where land could be procured at a very reasonable price. During haying and harvesting in the year 1825, people worked from sunrise to sunset for 37½ cents per day. For threshing grain during the winter months, days then being only 12 hours long, wages were 12½ cents per day, and many worked, receiving only their board as wages.

It may be said here, threshing was then done by and with the old fashioned "flail." Up to the year 1835, emigration to this county from Pa. had almost ceased. Individual parties came afterwards, and the Townships took on a very prosperous and healthy growth, many also emigrating during the years of the American Civil War, 1860-1865, to make their permanent home either in Waterloo, or some other favored section.

From here we shall pass on to the second part of our work, which deals with a brief historical sketch of some of the founders of the Biehn family, and some of their descendants.

The spelling of the name "Bean" seems to have come about in the following manner. When the little fellows first went to school, and were asked how their name was spelled, they did not know, so the teacher did the best he could, and entered the name on his ledger as "Bean."

Nearly all the Bean families now use this form, though some still use, or have reverted to the original form "Biehn." It is also found in the form of "Bien" or even "Been," on the memorial stones of some cemeteries.

S. U. B.

All efforts to obtain the names of John Biehn's parents proved fruitless.

1. II Biehn, John, was a native of Switzerland, where he was born in the year 1737. His father, John Biehn, was born in a Canton of Switzerland, between Berne and Zurich in the year 1700. His christian name is not known. John Biehn II had a brother, Paul, who went to Texas, where all trace was lost. An article in the "Saturday Evening Post," about 15 years ago, however, alludes several times to one Judge Bean, in "law enforcing activities," in early history of Texas. He may have been a son of Paul Bean.

In 1742, his parents moved to America and settled in Montgomery County, Pa., where he was raised. He was married to Barbara Fried, who was born in Montgomery County, Pa., in 1744. In 1800, they, with their family of grown children, moved to Canada. In this caravan there were 9 covered wagons, 22 horses, and a number of cows. They settled one mile west of Doon, Ont., on the farm that was later in the possession of their great-grandson, V Aaron S. Biehn. Here he purchased a large tract of land, still known as "Biehns' Tract." She died in 1807, aged 63 years, and he died in 1811, aged 74 years. Their family consisted of five daughters, and two sons. III Mary, III Barbara, III Anna, III Elizabeth, III John, III Abraham, III Catherine. Further data as to births, deaths, and to whom married, etc., are as follows:—

2. III Mary, the oldest, was born in 1766. She was married in 1799 to Abraham Lyons, who was born in 1774. He died at Strasburg, Ont., in 1804. They have one daughter, IV Mary, who was married to David B. Weber.

3. III Barbara, born June 28, 1772, was married to Dilman Kinzie, who was born in 1774. In the year 1800, they with others moved to Canada, and settled at Doon, Ont., where he died July 15, 1806. She died Dec. 22, 1854. They had a family of five children: IV Susannah, IV Barbara, IV Abraham, IV Jacob, and IV John.

4. III Anna, born in 1774, was married to Samuel Long. In 1800 they came to Canada, with her parents. The climate not being congenial to their health, they returned to Pa. They both died there.

5. III Elizabeth, was born in 1775. She was married to Benjamin Rosenberger in 1796, who was born in 1769. In 1801, they with others moved to Canada, from Pa. and settled near Preston, Ont. Here they both died. They had a family of six children: IV John, IV Abraham, IV Jacob, IV Barbara, IV Elizabeth, and IV Nancy.

6. III John, the eldest son of II John and Barbara (Fried) Biehn, was born in Montgomery County, Pa., in 1776. In the year 1799 he was married to Nancy, daughter of Abraham, and Mary (Hoch) Bechtel. In 1800, they with his parents and family, and others came to Canada, and settled in Waterloo County, where is now the village of Doon. Here he died in 1823. They resided on his father's farm, the "Old Biehn Homestead," on Lot No. 1, "Biehns' Tract," about one mile west of Doon. He is the fourth generation to reside on this farm. On this farm is located the present "Kinzie-Bean Pioneer Cemetery." Mr. Wm. A. Kinzie, Brantford, was the first president of this association, organized in June, 1928. Before passing on, an interesting sidelight has come to my attention through the versatile pen of Dr. Sidney B. Biehn. During the summer of 1946, with his youngest son Donald, he, and several other friends, visited an old Mennonite Church in Wilmot Township, and there on the church located on the farm formerly owned by IV John Biehn, they beheld to their surprise and astonishment, the name "Biehn," still plainly legible. What memories must have arisen in the bosoms of these visitors as they viewed with reverential awe and the greatest respect, the name that time and the elements had not erased in the course of over a century. They also visited an old cemetery near Wellesley, where the two youthful wives of V Rev. Samuel Bean had been laid to rest, in the early 1860s. The inscriptions, no doubt in German, on the memorial stones, though somewhat overgrown by some dark fungus-like growth, being yet plainly decipherable, was translated for them by an aged lady near by.
